HERALD TRIBUNE

15 September 1953

Probe Sifts What Happens To Charities' $500,000,000

A joint committee of the New tion," added the State Senator, York State Legislature began its "indicating gross irregularities, investigation here yesterday of maladministration and selfish what happens to more than disposition of funds collected $500,000,000 contributed annual- by some of these spurious charly by the people of the state to ity organizations.

charitable organizations. the New York State Joint Leg-istrative purposes.
islative Committee on Charit- In another case, he said, $900,-

This, he explained at his lected 1100 000 from the public headquarters at 165 Broadway, was only the initial step in the inquiry. Full-scale public hearings will be held in this city and other parts of the state in the latter part of November, he said

Sen. Tompkins said that he and Assemblyman Samuel Rabin, R., Queens, vice-chairman of the committee, were prompted to ask for the investigation by disclosures that in many fund drives, though millions of dollars were collected, only a small proportion, if any, of the money went to the institutions for which they were supposedly in-tended. The bulk of the money in these cases, he said, went to professional fund raisers and administrative costs."

"We lready have informa-

He cited one case in which an The chairman of the commit-organization had collected $650,tee, Sen. Bernard Tompkins, R., 000 from the public last year and Queens announced that the announced it had spent $652,000 committee, officially known as for collection costs and admin-able and Philanthropic Agencies 000 had been collected last year, and Organizations, had sent of which only $88,000 was left for questionnaires to 1,100 charit-charitable purposes. In a third able groups throughout the state case the organization had collast year but had spent all but $7,000 for collection costs and administration.

"At the present time," added the committee chairman, "there is no law, Federal, state or municipal, which requires these organizations to account to any agency for the disposition of their funds. It is not surprising that fakers and frauds have in-vaded the field, imposing upon vaded the field, imposing upon the public and devoting a large part or most of the collections to their personal use. In the mean time, too, they are diverting large sums from worthy and legitimate charities."

Sen. Tompkins said it was being night that all charity or

sen. Joinprins said it was his opinion that all charity or-ganizations, with certain ex-ceptions, "should be under some kind of state control to assure honesty and efficiency, and to protect the public and the legiti-mate charity groups."

He said that the committee's report, to be made to the incoming legislature in January, will undoubtedly contain recommendations. ommendations for such state supervision.

Omits Religious Groups

The investigation, explained the Senator, will not involve charities sponsored by legiti-mate religious organizations. He emphasized that the inquiry and possible state control "should encourage more generous giving, the public being assured that their contribution will all go for charitable purposes."
The questionnaire, it was explained, requires names of offi-cers, paid or not, whether out-side agencies are employed for fund raising and what percent-age of funds collected are retained by them. If private solici-tors are employed, organizations are required to tell how much they are paid.

they are paid.

A complete report on gross income and disbursements also is asked. "Those who do not answer fully," said the Senator, "will be subpoenaed to appear before our hearings and will be required to answer the questions in guidle." tions in public."

Approved For Release 2000/08/25: CIA-RDP57-00384R001200230007-9